Tax Decision To Be Given Monday Night

President To Report To Nation on TV on Economic Status

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will address the American people on the national economy by radio and television at 6 p.m. EST Monday.

By then he will have made up his mind for or against an immediate tax cut.

A White House announcement of the plans followed a conference between the chief executive and his key economic advisers.

Available for the mid-morning meeting were preliminary figures on a number of important economic indicators for July, which Kennedy said would influence his decision for or against tax reduction in 1962. The statistics revealed a moderate July pickup in business.

Called to the White House to discuss taxes and the economy were Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, budget Director David E. Bell, and the three members of the Council of Economic Advisers headed by Walter Heller.

The upward tilt in the July statistics lessened the already-slender chances of tax reduction prior to the administration's previously announced plans for a cut next year.

A group of labor leaders who lunched with Kennedy on Wednesday came away saying he was doubtful Congress would be willing to approve a tax cut this year. However, a final presidential decision was deferred pending study of the economic signposts for July.

The July figures, to be announced piecemeal during the coming weeks, will reveal a rather sluggish economic advance—but an advance, nonetheless. Although disappointing in terms of optimistic January forecasts, they hardly can be expected to generate the kind of alarm which many believe would be necessary before Congress would vote a tax cut at its current session.

Checks with informed officials indicated the July statistics will show moderate increases in retail sales, industrial production and personal income. Also, there appeared to be a fair chance that final figures will show a July reversal of the six-month downtrend in the flow of new orders to manufacturers of durable goods.

Employment figures announced earlier revealed a slight improvement in the job situation.

While the July results offer no basis for expecting a strong economic upsurge, neither do they point to an immediate recession. Since Kennedy already is concerned about congressional opposition to a hurry-up tax cut, it seemed likely the inconclusive statistics would permit a decision to defer action on taxes until 1963.

Negro Terms Suspended

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—Martin Luther King Jr. and three other integration leaders were convicted today of violating city ordinances in a prayer vigil, but they were given suspended sentences in an unprecedented move.

Sentence was imposed by Recorder A.N. Durden Jr. who found King and his associates guilty of disorderly conduct, congregating on the sidewalks and refusing to obey an officer.

But Durden suspended the sentences of $200 fines and 60 days in prison.

"I'm going to let you serve it on probation," Durden said, making the probation conditional upon the defendants not violating valid city ordinances and general good behavior.

East-West Test Deadlock Grows Deeper in Geneva Talks

GENEVA (AP)—The East-West deadlock on a nuclear test ban treaty deepened today following Soviet rejection of the new U.S. compromise proposal. The Soviets refused even to talk about automatic international inspection on Soviet soil.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin coldly spurned the U.S. plan in a speech prepared even before U.S. delegate Arthur H. Dean gave him a general outline Thursday of the plan calling for fewer control posts to detect illegal nuclear blasts and fewer on-site inspections of suspicious events.

Zorin once again adamantly refused to commit his government to the principle of compulsory international inspection and rejected the entire Western formula as "just the old American position dolled up in a new guise to deceive the neutrals."

"From all that we have heard," Zorin said, "it is clear that on the basis of the proposals which Mr. Dean has brought from Washington, no agreement on the cessation of nuclear weapons tests can be reached."

The Western concessions were offered on condition that the Soviets give firm prior commitment to the principle of compulsory on-the-spot checks of suspected treaty violations by international inspection teams.

"If the Soviet Union stops (its current series of) tests and accepts our offer, we will stop our testing tonight," Dean told Zorin. Zorin insisted on a recess in negotiations of the U.S.-British-Soviet nuclear test ban subcommittee of the 17-nation disarmament talks.

"There is no sense to go into detailed discussion now," he said, "because the U.S. position has not been changed in principle and there cannot be an agreement on the basis which the United States proposes."

The subcommittee members decided not to meet again until the full disarmament conference devotes a full session to the test ban deadlock. The meeting was set for Tuesday.

Afterward, Dean expressed bitter disappointment at the Soviet position but indicated that the West had gone about as far as it would go toward meeting the Soviets on a test ban treaty.

Drugs Studied In Death of Miss Monroe

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The coroner says more than one drug may have been involved in Marilyn Monroe's death.

Dr. Theodore J. Curphey said Thursday that toxicological researchers are interested in at least a dozen prescription bottles found in the blonde actress' home.

He added that an inquest in the case had not been ruled out.

Miss Monroe was found dead at her home last Sunday. Death was attributed to a massive dose of barbiturates. Police found an empty bottle that had contained Nembutal tablets on her nightstand.

The coroner said he will meet today with psychiatrists who are delving into the actress' final days to determine whether she deliberately killed herself.

A determination on whether suicide was involved, he said, is not likely before next Monday.

Miss Monroe's will, containing bequests for her half-sister, Bernice Maracle, and friends, will be submitted for probate within a week, the actress' attorneys said.

Milton Rudin and Aaron Frosch said the will was executed in New York City on Jan. 14, 1961.

Band Serenades Jackie, Caroline

RAVELLO, Italy (AP)—An Italian brass band serenaded Jacqueline Kennedy today with a tune called "La Kennediana."

The U.S. President's wife and her 4-year-old daughter Caroline applauded as they sat on a parapet of their villa and listened to the 60-piece band.

Maestro Raffaello Miglietta composed "La Kennediana" after President Kennedy was elected in 1960.

The band massed in the main square of this cliff-top resort where Mrs. Kennedy and daughter Caroline are spending a two-week vacation.

New Deadline Near in Soblen Legal Hassle

LONDON (AP)—Britain's second midnight deadline for El Al Airline to ship Dr. Robert A. Soblen to the United States neared today and an aviation source reported a strong possibility the fugitive spy would be aboard the Israeli airline's night flight for New York.

There was no confirmation from El Al, however, and no indication that it would modify its refusal to take Soblen to America.

The Israeli government instructed the airline previously that if Soblen was put aboard a New York flight, the other passengers should be removed and Soblen taken to Israel.

"We have no booking for Dr. Soblen, but there are a few seats remaining," an El Al spokesman said.

"This is an extremely delicate matter involving three governments," a qualified aviation source said. "I am not at liberty to divulge anything definite."

But he advised newsmen to be at London Airport for the plane's 8 p.m. (3 p.m. Eastern Standard Time) departure time.

"There is a strong possibility that Dr. Soblen will be on it," he said.

Soblen, 61, jumped $100,000 bail in New York in late June and fled to Israel on a dead brother's passport. Israel expelled him as an illegal immigrant and put him on an El Al plane for New York with a U.S. marshal.

The airline landed Soblen in Britain after he slashed a wrist and plunged a knife into his stomach during the flight. Two British courts ruled that he had no permission to remain in Britain and could stay only until able to travel.

Israel has been under heavy pressure from the United States and Britain to return Soblen to New York. But the Israeli government is under heavy political pressure at home from persons who question his expulsion without a court hearing. If he is returned to Israel, he probably will wind up in Communist Czechoslovakia, which has offered him asylum.

Estes Slapped With New U.S. Indictment

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department announced today the indictment of Texas financier Billie Sol Estes on new charges of misrepresenting his financial condition in statements made to the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Nicholas deB. Katzenbach said the charges were contained in an indictment returned this morning by a federal grand jury in Dallas, Tex.

Katzenbach said the jury also indicted Robert E. Earl Clements, 67, of Amarillo, Tex., on five counts of transporting fraudulently obtained securities in interstate commerce.

The Estes indictment, Katzenbach said, charged him with understating his liabilities in reporting to the CCC in connection with his storage of grain for the government.

Estes was accused of stating in a report submitted last March 8, that his liabilities totaled $8,852,430, whereas the liabilities actually exceeded $11 million, the jury said.

A statement submitted April 3, 1961, listed Estes' liabilities as $6,352,461, but the jury said that they actually exceeded $10.4 million at that time.

An Oct. 9, 1961 statement gave Estes' liabilities as $7,916,740 instead of the actual total of more than $12 million, the jury charged.

Hoover Says U.N. Failing, Urges 'Free Nation Council'

U.S., Canada Railroad Union Relations Contrast Sharply

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Railroad management and union relations in Canada and in the United States appear to be in sharp contrast.

In Canada, the jubilant railway union leaders hailed today their new job security pact for protection against automation as a pattern for other railway workers throughout the Western world.

The pact was included in an agreement reached Thursday between Canada's railways and their 100,000 nonoperating employees.

It sets up a fund — $2.5 million in the first year—from which compensation will be paid to veteran employees who lose their jobs because of automation or other technological progress.

Although details of the plan's operation are still to be worked out, the unions called it history making.

Harry Bridges' Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the Pacific Maritime Association agreed two years ago on a six-year pact under which employers would pay $5 million annually into a workers' benefit fund to protect them against layoffs as a result of automation.

The Canadian rail agreement includes an 8-cent-an-hour wage increase to be paid over the life of the two-year contract, which is retroactive to Jan. 1. The wage settlement will cost the railways about $20 million a year.

The agreement was based on the unanimous recommendations of a three-man Federal Conciliation Board headed by Justice Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, the American railroads plan to cut their work force by about 10 per cent in an effort to reduce operating costs.

James E. Wolfe, spokesman for the railroads, told a U.S. District Court hearing Thursday that the economy drive eventually would eliminate some 65,000 jobs.

The court battle in which five continues today. The unions are seeking a temporary court order to preserve present railroad work rules until the job issue can be settled by a higher court.

Operating Unions, Representing 210,000 Workers, Are Attempting to Block the Proposed Dismissals

The carriers want an immediate reclassification of work rules that would make obsolete the jobs of some 40,000 firemen who presently ride in the cabs of diesel locomotives.

But Wolfe said this is just the first step in the over-all economy effort.

Unnecessary labor expenses, Wolfe testified, cost the nation's railroads $592,062,000 annually.

The reclassification, in line with the recommendations of a presidential fact-finding commission, would result in the immediate dismissal of 13,000 firemen, those with less than 10 years seniority. The 40,000-job reduction would be accomplished gradually by retirement, transfer and normal job turnover.

In addition, Wolfe testified, the carriers hope to eliminate 25,000 additional operating workers in accordance with the work rules proposed by the presidential commission.

The unions say they will strike rather than allow the new work rules to go into effect.

White House action probably would block such a move—at least

Surgeon Tells How Boy, 8, Taken Apart, Put Together

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An 8-year-old boy, bright eyed and sparkling, sat quietly at a news conference while a surgeon told how the youngster had been taken apart and put back together again.

Timmy McCabe, born without abdominal muscles, was one of those rare cases doctors call "prune bellies." His internal organs were out of place, swollen and infected at birth. He was given virtually no chance to live.

"Give him lots of love," physicians said eight years ago. "There's nothing we can do for him."

But Dr. John M. Southwell, senior surgical resident of Childrens Hospital, explained Thursday that Timmy could expect to live a normal life—but probably shouldn't play tackle football.

Timmy is alive, the doctor said, because of an operation thought to be one of the first successful ones of its kind ever performed.

Timmy has been a frequent patient at Childrens Hospital through most of his life. After five previous operations, he was wheeled into surgery last July 17. Surgeons worked for five hours to provide support for the distended abdomen previously held in by tight jeans and corsets.

The organs were put in their proper places. The abdominal tissue was tightened and stitched together like a vest.

A long leg muscle was severed, brought up and fastened to the 10th rib — resulting in a suspended

Ohio's Pupil Outlay Said To Rank High

BETHEL, Ohio (AP)—State Sen. John W. Brown of Medina, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, said in a campaign speech at a GOP rally in this Clermont County Community Thursday night that "Ohio ranks higher than most states in the amount of money spent per pupil."

Brown declared that "the constant harassing of the legislature over the so-called 'failure' to provide sufficient funds for education has become a political football that is being kicked for the purpose of getting votes and is not in the true interest of education."

Brown referred to the school management magazine published in Greenwich, Conn., saying: "Seeking a non-biased source of information and using the resume set forth by the magazine, Ohio far exceeds all other states in the (rate of) increase per pupil expenditure over the last 10 years to where we rank fifth in the nation, exceeded only by Mississippi, Arkansas, Kentucky and Maine."

"On regional basis where school management magazine divided the states into geographical regions, Ohio ranks second and is exceeded only by the region composed of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. This indicates that we in Ohio are among the leaders in the field of education."

Ex-President Seeks Action To Keep Peace

WEST BRANCH, Iowa (AP)—From this peaceful village he knew as a boy, Herbert Hoover called today for a "Council of Free Nations" to work for world peace.

The former president, white-haired and bushy-browed, made the suggestion from a flag-draped platform he shared with one of his successors in the White House, Harry S. Truman.

The scene was the dedication of the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library in a serene park adjoining the two-room cottage where Hoover was born 88 years ago today. "We must realize," said Hoover, "that the United Nations has failed to give us even a remote hope of lasting peace. Instead, it adds to the dangers of wars which now surround us."

The Communist countries, he said, "have destroyed the usefulness of the United Nations to preserve peace."

In suggesting a Council of Free Nations, Hoover made it clear he did not intend that it should replace the U.N. But, he said, it "should step in" when the U.N. fails to act or is "prevented from taking action" to preserve peace.

"The time is here when, if the free nations are to survive, they must have a new and stronger worldwide organization," Hoover said.

"For purposes of this discussion I may call it the 'Council of Free Nations. It should include only those who are willing to stand up and fight for their freedom.'"

Hoover said he would not have the council replace the United Nations, but would design it to step in when the United Nations is prevented from acting or fails to act to preserve peace.

The Hoover library made of native limestone, is the fourth of the presidential libraries created by Congress to make the records of White House administrations available to the American people. The new structure occupies 6,500 square feet and a second unit of 9,000 square feet is planned.

Already functioning are the libraries of Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Truman was listed among the guest speakers.

Today's ceremonies in West Branch, where Hoover spent the first 10 years of his life, included presentation of two honorary degrees to him, one from the University of Iowa.

Ike Lunches With Queen, Visits Winnie

LONDON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower had lunch at Buckingham Palace with Queen Elizabeth II today and then called on his old friend, Sir Winston Churchill.

Eisenhower drove to London's Middlesex Hospital in mid-afternoon in an American Embassy car escorted by two motorcycle police.

Sir Winston, 87, recovering in the hospital since June 29 from a broken hip, was reported to be out of bed and sitting up in a chair. His wife, Lady Churchill, visited him a short time before Eisenhower arrived and said Sir Winston "seems a lot better and is happy."

Diamond Ring Thief Is Sought by Police

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An all-state alert has been issued for a thief or thieves who took trays of diamond rings from jewelry stores in Wilmington and Columbus Thursday.

Eight diamond rings valued at $1,000 were taken from Hatt's Jewelry Store in downtown Wilmington at about 11 a.m. The rings taken from Richard's Jewellers here at about 2:30 p.m. were valued at between $3,500 and $5,000.

Police said similar methods were used in each case—a man entering the store asking for a woman's watch which was supposedly repaired.

Man Recalls Debt Owed by Henry Ford

DETROIT (AP)—At 108, William Malwitz starts and finishes each day with a shot of whisky. Sometimes he broods about the 50-cent loan he says Henry Ford never repaid him.

Yes, he does drink the whisky—one little swallow when he gets up in the morning and one when he goes to bed, said grandfather-in-law Mrs. August Malwitz.

He eats well, too—"more than my husband."

All this came out as a result of a birthday party Thursday for Malwitz at a convalescent home.

His memory is no longer as good as it used to be but he still recalls, said Mrs. Malwitz, that he loaned Henry Ford, then a boy, 50 cents about 80 years ago to buy a book and Ford never repaid him.

"It still bothers him," Mrs. Malwitz said. "It happened a long time ago when Henry Ford was a boy and used to read in the fields out in what now is Dearborn."

"His father wouldn't give him money to buy books on mechanics so one day he borrowed the 50 cents from grandpa. He never paid it back, and grandpa's never forgotten."

East-West Test Deadlock Grows Deeper in Geneva Talks

The subcommittee members decided not to meet again until the full disarmament conference develops a full session to the test ban deadlock. The meeting was set for Tuesday.

Afterward, Dean expressed bitter disappointment at the Soviet position but indicated that the West had gone about as far as it would go toward meeting the Soviets on a test ban treaty.

Estes Slapped With New U.S. Indictment

Rhodes' 200,000-Job Plan Impossible, BUC Chief Says

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Rhodes plan for creating 200,000 new jobs in Ohio came under attack today in Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's Cabinet meeting.

Administrator Donald B. Leach of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation said some figures cited by State Auditor James A. Rhodes in his plan were erroneous or misleading.

Rhodes offered the program for stimulating Ohio industry as a part of his Republican campaign to unseat DiSalle, the Democrat incumbent, in the Nov. 6 election.

Leach told the Cabinet that Ohio's present unemployment rate is 10 per cent below the national average.

Rhodes said in presenting his plan that Ohio employment rose only 2.1 per cent in the 1959-62 period compared with a 6.7 per cent gain nationally.

The announcement originally said Youngstown lost 13,000 jobs during that period but the figure later was changed to 11,800. Leach said the error stemmed from recent elimination of Mercer County, Pa., from the Youngstown area in reckoning employment.

Leach said Ohio employment increased by 200,000 in the five months through last June but that slightly more than 200,000 of the state's total labor force still are unemployed.

"To add 200,000 jobs at this time," Leach asserted, "would give us a zero rating . . . this is an impossibility."

Stating that Ohio's unemployment rate historically has been below the national average, Leach added:

"It makes me sort of tired to hear talk about Ohio being downgraded. The Ohio economy is one of the best . . . in the country. It seems to me we ought to stop yelling about its being a declining state."

DiSalle asked another in his series of questions for Rhodes, who has delayed answers so far.

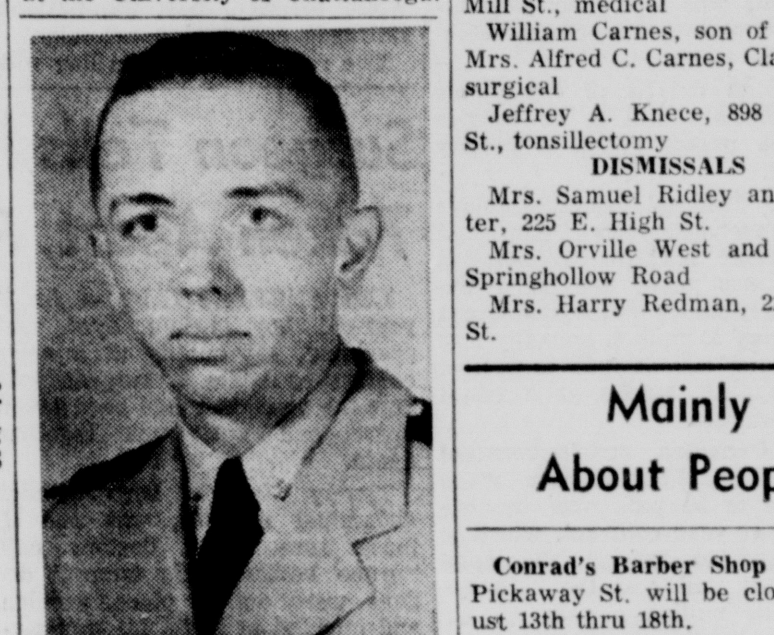

The governor prefaced the question by noting that Senate and against supplemental unemployment legislation approved by the 11959 General Assembly under Democrat control.

"Do you feel that there was a need for supplemental unemployment compensation at that time," DiSalle asked, "or do you feel that your associates followed the best course in voting against the bill? If you disagree with them, do you now repudiate the position they took at that time?"

Daily Newspaper Called Great Teaching Tool

IN TRAINING — Midshipman Donald J. Baird, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Baird, Route 2, New Holland, Pa., is undergoing summer training in techniques of modern amphibious warfare at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, Norfolk, Va. He is one of more than 700 Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps Midshipmen representing 34 U.S. colleges and universities participating in the training.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices fell into a mixed pattern early this afternoon. Trading was slow, as it normally is just before a summer weekend.

The market opened mixed, declined a bit and then recovered the ground that had been lost. As in previous sessions this week most changes of key issues were under a full point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .3 at 217.5 with industrials down .3, rails off .2 and utilities unchanged.

The market appeared stalled as President Kennedy met with his top economic advisers to seek a decision on tax reductions. Most of Wall Street has already concluded there will be no cut this year.

Acting as master of ceremonies was Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the board of the Herbert Hoover Birthplace Foundation and Hoover's former secretary.

Strauss was chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, 1953-55.

The return to West Branch recalled for Hoover "a joyous childhood." It was here, he said, that he picked potato bugs for 10 cents a hundred "for the serious purpose of buying firecrackers to applaud the founding fathers on each Fourth of July."

He decried the voices which despair that "the American way of life is on its way to decline and fall. I do not believe it."

Hoover pointed to the "steeples of tens of thousands of places of worship" and a hundred million worshippers; to the Bill of Rights, "an enforced law of the land;" to an educational system which sends forth every year "a host of stimulated minds."

"The mightiest assurances of our future are the intangible spiritual and intellectual forces in our people," he said.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Danger is a kind of glue which keeps Democrats and Republicans together except when the glue melts, which happens frequently and most noticeably in an election year, like this one.

This togetherness, called bipartisanship in foreign affairs, is an effort by the two parties to put up a united front against troubles abroad while differing on things at home.

Yet, although they agree a danger like communism must be stiff-armed everywhere, they frequently get unstuck on the question of how. It happened again this week, just three months before congressional elections.

The Republican Senate Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois, said the Kennedy administration sent its representative to Geneva "hat in hand" to make concessions to the Russians on a nuclear test-ban treaty.

And in this same mission to Switzerland New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, seeking reelection this November, saw a "weakening" and "high risk" danger in the American proposals.

Later he said his criticism didn't mean a change in his attitude that national issues should be kept out of the state election campaign although Democrats may wonder why then he was critical in the first place.

The State Department quickly disputed the Dirksen-Rockefeller views. But no one, remembering the record of other years, need fear the fractures, bruises and abrasions bipartisanship suffers in 1962 will be fatal.

In 1950, when President Truman sent troops into war in Korea just a little over five months before the congressional elections, Republicans, particularly Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio, hardly looked bipartisan.

Taft said this country had "invited" the Korean War. And Rep. Leonard Hall of New York, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, complained Truman administration bungling led to the war.

The Republican National Committee put out a document listing

what it called foreign policy failures under the Democrats.

The Republican rat-a-tat on the opposition got so bad that year that Thomas E. Dewey, titular head of the Republicans at that time, called for a closing of ranks in the "national emergency."

The Republicans didn't have bipartisanship among themselves. In 1951 their own leadership split on whether American troops should be sent to Europe.

It was in the 1952 presidential campaign that bipartisanship took a long and painful vacation.

But Dwight D. Eisenhower got elected president that year and for the next eight years it was the Republicans who made foreign policy, the first time they had a chance to since 1932.

In the 1954 congressional election year—after the peace settlement that gave the Communists half of Indochina—Adlai E. Stevenson complained the United States, although not directly involved in the fighting, had suffered a "devastating loss."

He also had a few things to say on bipartisanship, or the lack of it, particularly among the Republicans themselves.

But anyone who remembers the 1956 election campaign—especially what Stevenson had to say about Eisenhower's foreign policy—will hardly recall it as a happy time for bipartisanship.

Came the 1958 congressional election year. Democrats attacked the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign affairs with such gusto that Eisenhower and Vice President Richard M. Nixon were split on how to handle the critics.

Eisenhower wanted to ignore them. Nixon said that was all right for a man in Eisenhower's position but, as for himself, he was going to fire back. And he did.

Everybody remembers 1960.

Science To Share Top Billing at State Fair

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—There was a promise today that when the gates open for the "new" Ohio State Fair Aug. 24, science and industry will share top billing with agriculture in the big event. The fair will extend through Sept. 3. Rowland Bishop, general manager of the Ohio Expositions Commission, new control body for the fair, said that "never before has agriculture been as prominent at the fair, and the supporting roles played by industry and science will make the 1962 fair the best ever."

Diversification of this year's fair, now in its 107th year, will make it just about impossible for fairgoers to see the fair in one visit. Bishop said he believed at least three different visits would be necessary to see all that is being offered.

The program calls for the junior division competition to dominate the first four days and the open division's different classes of competition reach a peak during the middle four days. The western horse show and science exhibits highlight the Labor Day weekend. Entertainment also will be different during the three periods.

The new commission has a hope its "new look" for the 1962 will be a success. Fairgoers will be seeing top livestock, industrial and scientific exhibits as well as stars of the entertainment world.

One of the new angles is extending the fair to 11 days, long-term run in its history. Games of chance were barred from the midway, and the practice of issuing thousands of free passes to the fair was discontinued.

On the entertainment side, comedian Red Skelton will be on hand with vocalist Tina Turner during the first four days. An auto thrill show, a seven-star jubilee of Grand Ole Opry favorites and world championship wrestling fill the entertainment bill the next few days. Lorne Greene and Dan Blocker, stars of television's "Bonanza" show, will appear over the Labor Day weekend with the Tom Steiner Rodeo.

The four-day harness racing program, Aug. 27-30, will have more money and horses than ever before competing — more than $100,000 has been set up as prize money.

Some of the "new look" at the fair will be on ground improvements. Newly painted fences give the grounds a better look, and flowers, donated by various civic organizations in Columbus, also will give the grounds a more attractive appearance.

Income from the grant will assist deserving students who might otherwise be financially unable to enter college.

Jail Door Opens For Cage Fixer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Prison lies ahead for a youth from the Bronx Borough of New York City who used basketball to go to college, then succumbed to the persuasion of gamblers trying to fix games.

Judge Henry A. McKinnon Jr., who sentenced Gerald Vogel Thursday to one year in prison, expressed the hope that the gamblers will be the next to be brought to justice.

Vogel, 24, was a starter for the University of Alabama. He pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to conspiring to bribe other players, and told the court he was a contact man for gamblers Aaron Wagman and Joseph E. Greene, both of New York.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — James Drury isn't a television star yet and indeed, he may never make it. But in the event NBC's new big economy size Western, "The Virginian," lands on target we have in him a ready-made sagebrush Ben Casey.

Drury is a comparative unknown with some experience who plunked the season's acting plum, title role in the 90-minute series based on an old Gary Cooper movie.

Tall, handsome and 28, the young actor is already showing symptoms of a galloping Vincent Edwards syndrome: self-assurance, a hair-trigger temper and a very prickly disposition.

The network has an enormous stake in the success of "The Virginian." It hopes its length, expensive production and exciting performers will keep Wednesday night audiences from traveling with "Wagon Train" to rival ABC. One of Drury's jobs is to whip up advance interest.

And he's perfectly willing—as long as it is on company time—to pose for publicity pictures, sit still and look mildly bored for interviews.

But braced with a casual question—where he lives or whether his father is still a New York University professor—Drury turns upon his questioner with angry eyes and a fierce, "I won't answer questions like that. That's personal."

"I think the public is entitled to know how I feel about my work, and how I feel about the show and even about my relations with the rest of the company," he explained heatedly. "But I don't think it is entitled to know anything about my private life."

Lapsed GI Insurance Bill OK'd by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has passed and sent to the house a bill to extend for a year the time in which veterans of World War II and Korea can apply for government insurance.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said veterans, including some partially disabled, could get term insurance until age 50 and then convert it into modified life policies.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—Danger is a kind of glue which keeps Democrats and Republicans together except when the glue melts, which happens frequently and most noticeably in an election year, like this one.

This togetherness, called bipartisanship in foreign affairs, is an effort by the two parties to put up a united front against troubles abroad while differing on things at home.

Yet, although they agree a danger like communism must be stiff-armed everywhere, they frequently get unstuck on the question of how. It happened again this week, just three months before congressional elections.

The Republican Senate Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois, said the Kennedy administration sent its representative to Geneva "hat in hand" to make concessions to the Russians on a nuclear test-ban treaty.

And in this same mission to Switzerland New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, seeking reelection this November, saw a "weakening" and "high risk" danger in the American proposals.

Later he said his criticism didn't mean a change in his attitude that national issues should be kept out of the state election campaign although Democrats may wonder why then he was critical in the first place.

The State Department quickly disputed the Dirksen-Rockefeller views. But no one, remembering the record of other years, need fear the fractures, bruises and abrasions bipartisanship suffers in 1962 will be fatal.

In 1950, when President Truman sent troops into war in Korea just a little over five months before the congressional elections, Republicans, particularly Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio, hardly looked bipartisan.

Taft said this country had "invited" the Korean War. And Rep. Leonard Hall of New York, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, complained Truman administration bungling led to the war.

The Republican National Committee put out a document listing

what it called foreign policy failures under the Democrats.

The Republican rat-a-tat on the opposition got so bad that year that Thomas E. Dewey, titular head of the Republicans at that time, called for a closing of ranks in the "national emergency."

The Republicans didn't have bipartisanship among themselves in 1951 their own leadership split on whether American troops should be sent to Europe.

It was in the 1952 presidential campaign that bipartisanship took a long and painful vacation.

But Dwight D. Eisenhower got elected president that year and for the next eight years it was the Republicans who made foreign policy, the first time they had a chance to since 1932.

In the 1954 congressional election year—after the peace settlement that gave the Communists half of Indochina—Adlai E. Stevenson complained the United States, although not directly involved in the fighting, had suffered a "devastating loss."

Concern Could Backfire

A great deal of attention has been focused recently on threatened and actual strikes by construction workers at missile sites and other national defense installations. The President has made a point on repeated occasions of drawing public attention to the harm which would befall the nation's defenses if any delays were permitted.

Undoubtedly due to the President's active intervention in labor disputes, and the resultant publicity given to isolated labor troubles, an unusual degree of uneasiness seems to be seeping into the public image of labor-management relations.

Uneasiness is unusual because it comes at a time when the strike, as a weapon of labor, is at its lowest ebb of influence since World War II. For the first five months of 1962, time lost due to strikes was .14 per cent of the nation's total working time, or less than 2-10ths of 1 per cent. For the last five years, the average annual lost time due to strikes was .23 per cent of available working hours, according to Labor Department statistics. This rate was down considerably from earlier postwar years, when time lost due to strikes broke all previous records.

1961, with a lost time record of .14 per cent, rated as one of the best years in labor-management relations. The record of 1962 thus far is a carbon copy of last year. But continued expressions of uneasiness by government officials and a tendency by some of them to over-react to normal labor-management maneuvers could create an atmosphere of distrust between the two parties most directly concerned.

Preparing for an undesirable eventuality is commendable foresight. Anticipating it with such vigor and threatening force that it is created, not of its own volition, but by the very inertia of the forces swirling about to prevent it, is inexcusable.

British Cousins Coming

What are described as modestly favorable results are accruing from the nation's first official attempt to persuade our cousins overseas to pay us a visit.

In the first four months of 1962 there were 147,000 foreign visitors to the United States, an increase of 16 per cent. In London the United States embassy reports a 30 per cent increase in visas issued to Britons in the first six months of this year.

And, persuaded to venture across the wide Atlantic, how do they like it when they get here? Their reactions are mixed. Some feel the welcome at airports and other points of arrival is not — to put it delicately — as warm as they might wish. Americans know what they mean.

Many complain about high prices and the dirty streets and noise of American cities.

There is much merit in all this, although rudeness and high prices are encountered in many places besides the United States. For studied insolence some headwaiters of London and Paris are unsurpassed and Europeans who think it expensive to sojourn in the United States should try a weekend in Caracas.

It may be of meager consolation to them, but the visitors from abroad ought to be told that the noise and dirt to which they object are precisely the things that make American cities objectionable to Americans.

Filet Mignon, a Status Symbol

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Jumping to conclusions:

A filet mignon steak is a symbol of the good life to many, but actually it is one of the most overrated and tasteless of foods—an example of the victory of snobbery over real values.

If you had to choose between eating nothing but filet mignon and gravy, or nothing but rice and gravy, you'd probably last longer on the latter—and enjoy it more. Rice holds its flavor appeal longer than any other single food.

When he is with two women, the quickest way for a man to make an enemy is to light the cigarette of one—and forget to light the cigarette of the other. A wife will put up with a husband who beats her in private if he always lights her cigarette in public.

The thing fat men are most fastidious about is their feet. Their shoes usually have a better shine than those of skinny men.

A woman over 50 who tries to hide her years by wearing too much makeup looks no more foolish than a man over 50 who insists on playing tennis to prove he's still young.

Working himself to death for his wife doesn't annoy the average husband half as much as being asked to come to her aid when she gets a zipper stuck. Why don't they use buttons?

A man who invariably wears a four-in-hand necktie invariably thinks a man who invariably wears a bow tie hasn't quite grown up.

Two strangers riding up alone in an automatic elevator never comment on anything except the weather—unless one of them has been drinking.

The real reason that so many women have taken up bowling is—that's where the men are.

If you want to get a really good meal, go to a restaurant heavily patronized by little old wealthy widows. Good food becomes one of their main joys in life—and they have the time to seek out the restaurants that serve it.

It is hard to understand why a woman who cheerfully carves up a chicken in her own kitchen acts so squirmy about basting her own hook when she goes fishing.

The honeymoon is over when the bride first asks, "Why do you have to spend so much for lunch?"

Half the people who scream for more cultural programs on television wouldn't bother to watch them if they were provided.

The man who smiles through every loss isn't necessarily a good sport. He is more likely to be merely a poor player who doesn't have enough sense to keep his mind on the game.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—Uncle Sam is about to have company in his heretofore exclusive club. Joining him in worrying because good times aren't getting better fast enough are some of those he has been envying are such paragons of booming economies as West Germany, France and Japan.

But one and all have the consolation that if the bloom is off their boom, at least they're a lot better off than the Soviet Union and China, where mounting troubles are becoming plain for all to see.

In the United States, worrying so far has concentrated in Washington and Wall Street. The rest of the country mostly has gone along doing business about as usual and planning to do more business in the future.

But in Washington the debate over what to do about an economy that isn't growing as fast as hoped is at a peak, both in and out of Congress.

And Wall Street had its say in May and June when stock prices broke sharply to bolster recession fears.

Stock market slides also were the first outward sign of trouble in West Germany and Japan. Stock prices in England and France have moved pretty much in sympathy with Wall Street also, as is natural in a world growing ever more tightly allied financially.

But signs of industrial slowdown are now reported in the Common Market nations that of late have been cited as shining examples of the way to get a boom started and keep it going. Their fiscal policies — ignoring orthodox treasury deficits, as these are understood in the United States, to keep economy humming—are being studied by American financial experts for tips on how Washington might change its fiscal ways.

While Washington is studying the European examples, West Germany reports a slowdown in the pace of several of its heretofore fast-growing industries. This has been dramatized by a drop of about 25 per cent in stock price averages in the last four months.

Japan's flashy stock market ran into trouble some time back. Now France is beginning to fret about an economic development that has plagued the United States most of this year—a slowdown in capital goods investment.

Some see all this as proof that the old economic cycle is far from being as dead as many had hoped. Others see it as a challenge to try new ways, here and abroad, to get the non-Communist world moving faster again—especially as troubles in the Communist world mount.

LAFF-A-DAY

"Drip dry."

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

OCTOGENARIAN playwright and novelist P. G. Wodehouse has jotted down some of his memories in a little book called "Author! Author!" He recalls, for instance, the time he went to Southern California for the winter — and found it. And the time he asked Thurber how his new play was coming along. "It has only one fault," answered Thurber slowly. "It's kind of lousy."

Wodehouse became a writer because, he says, after starting out as a bank clerk, he quickly decided that his true future lay in cashing rather than filing checks.

Bernard Shaw was no favorite of P. G. Wodehouse. He quotes, with relish, a remark made by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero when Shaw resigned in a huff from the Dramatists Club. "Mr. Shaw's resignation," said Sir Arthur, "is as nothing compared with ours."

At a Westchester country club, a member told the owner of a big metropolitan newspaper, "Say, I owe you a vote of thanks. Your paper proved just the thing to stop my two kids from raising the devil this morning." Obviously pleased, the newspaper owner inquired, "What particular article did the trick?" "No article at all," explained the father. "I just rolled up your paper and whacked them with it."

Riddle Department:
1. Q. What's the difference between a school teacher and a railroad train?
A. The teacher says, "Take that gum out of your mouth; the train says, 'Choo! Choo!'"
2. Q. What has eight legs, wears feathers, and says, "Ba-a-a, ba-a-a, ba-a-a?"
A. An Iroquois Indian quartette singing "The Whiffenpoof Song."

Chin straps? Patting, stretching and grimaicing? Don't forget milking the flesh up towards each ear.

Chin straps and exercises can't help when skin loses its elastic bounce and aging muscles begin to shrink and shrivel.

Your face is covered with tiny muscles that pull the skin when you sneeze, smile or sneeze. As they shrink, they overstretch skin that can't bounce back.

Now wrinkles and creases appear across the forehead, in the crows' feet alongside each eye and down and around from nose and mouth to the side of the jaw.

Jowls protrude as fat fills loose, sagging skin.

Ironing out a face full of wrinkles leaves the skin tightly starched, like an expressionless mask! But face-lifting surgery can help when wrinkles first appear.

The plastic surgeon separates skin from shrinking muscles. He pulls the slack up and around towards your ear and temple, and trims it. Scars are hidden under hair and behind ears.

Afterwards, your face feels tight. You can't smile wide or frown hard.

Face-lifting doesn't restore youth. It's more like repainting an old house. You'll look years younger, but the job lasts only five to six years.

Wrinkles return faster when you suddenly slim down; continually laugh, cry and frown over emotionally; have to magnify facial expression on stage or in front of cameras.

Plastic surgery has kept one famous actor looking so youthful fans rushed to buy his vitamin formula.

Actors need face-lifting. You don't, unless wrinkles are ruining your life or career. Otherwise the temporary gain isn't worth so much trouble and expense.

Keep trying exercises and chin straps. By the time you give up, plastic surgery would have worn off anyway!

America's Great Man

By George Sokolsky

It is now 48 years that Herbert Hoover has devoted all the hours of his life to public service. It is the record of a man whose acceptance of public responsibility has almost been priestly in character. He has asked for not return, for no thanks, for no recognition for services done.

Not all of Herbert Hoover's efforts have been successful; but they have all been motivated by selfless recognition that each man is his brother's servant.

It is not surprising that today reaching the great age of 88, Herbert Hoover should be an honored and beloved man. Even those who bore him enmity for the Depression of 1929 have long come to recognize that in Herbert Hoover, as President, we had not a politician who twisted and turned with the tides of popularity, but one who was guided by the foundation principles of our civilization, by the Natural Law and by the Constitution of the United States.

Herbert Hoover has never been a radical or a reactionary. In the 19th Century, he would have been regarded as a moderate liberal, of the order of John Stuart Mill; in the 20th Century, he would be called a conservative.

The 19th Century Liberal believed in the expansion of individual human rights and benefits. He put an end to child labor; he gained the vote for an increasing number of persons; he attacked the concept that women were chattel; he fought against slavery and abolished it in most places. His slogan was equality of opportunity for all of mankind.

But the 19th Century Liberal differed from the 20th Century Liberal in one basic essential: the 19th Century Liberal believed that by the expansion of the liberties of the individual, by increased access to education, by equality of economic opportunity, the individual would contribute his share to the perfection of society.

The 20th Century Liberal has found this process too slow. He has turned to government as the vehicle of achieving all good. He has expanded the powers and activities of government. He has reduced the possibility for equality of opportunity by burdening the individual with taxes which, in America, are bringing the economy to a standstill.

He has made the government the benefactor of a large part of the population; thus, destroying ambition and initiative and lessening the impulse toward achievement. He has substituted a humanitarian philosophy of life for the loving, God-fearing morality of the Judeo-Christian civilization.

In his anxiety to solve all human problems speedily, the 20th Century Liberal has lost the meaning of the family system. He has substituted for parental solicitude, a pseudo-scientific sociological intervention in the family and a psychiatric supervision of morals. The evil results of this are statistical in increased divorces, broken homes and juvenile criminality.

In 1962, dissatisfaction with the product of 20th Century Liberalism is widespread. Young people do not like the world in which they find themselves. Many become Communists; other declare themselves to be various types of conservatives (some without definition); still others have joined various extremist rightist radical movements. Others, like the Beatniks, turn to sexual escapism as a way of life.

These are manifestations of youthful reaction to an unsatisfactory way of life.

In this changing and confusing world, Herbert Hoover stands as a monumental moral force, the solid representative in our land of the basic principles of 19th Century Liberalism. He has brought into the 20th Century the Quaker ideal of the goodness of man in the love of God. This concept is not Humanistic; it is Deistic, for man cannot stand alone in a changing world. He requires the strength of faith in a force outside himself, as Matthew Arnold put it, that makes for righteousness, and having that strength within himself, he does not need the power of government to control him.

Herbert Hoover's life is a Horatio Alger story. The orphaned son of a blacksmith and a seamstress, he became a great engineer, the feeder of the human race, Secretary of Commerce and President of the United States. He heads the Boys Clubs of America, perhaps to help give other boys what he missed as a boy. He is the author of many important historical volumes and is now engaged in a great work on international relations.

He is America's great man.

Mrs. FDR To Miss Bridge Dedication

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, weakened by a virus attack, will not attend the dedication of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Bridge between Lubec, Maine, and Campobello Island next Monday.

The former First Lady's secretary said Wednesday that Mrs. Roosevelt hoped to go to Campobello Saturday, but "for a complete rest." Campobello was the Roosevelt family's summer home for many years.

Mrs. Roosevelt, 77, became ill last weekend and had to cancel several political appearances.

Betting Syndicate Trial Is Delayed

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A federal judge has postponed until Oct. 15 the trial of 13 persons indicted in connection with alleged operation of a nationwide race-horse betting syndicate.

The defendants allegedly ran a gambling syndicate that linked 20 cities in a racehorse payoff system. A federal grand jury has indicted them for illegal use of long distance telephone lines and defrauding the government of excise taxes on the calls.

The 13 include Benjamin and Robert Lassoff and Myron Deckelbaum, all of Cincinnati.

Air was filtered into the "white room" where the Telstar satellite was assembled. Before entering, workers vacuumed their shoes and put on lint-free nylon caps and gowns. Engineers used washable crayon instead of chalk on blackboards. Cleanliness was essential for one smudgy fingerprint on a vital part could have shortened Telstar's life.

Concern Could Backfire

A great deal of attention has been focused recently on threatened and actual strikes by construction workers at missile sites and other national defense installations. The President has made a point on repeated occasions of drawing public attention to the harm which would befall the nation's defenses if any delays were permitted.

Undoubtedly due to the President's active intervention in labor disputes, and the resultant publicity given to isolated labor troubles, an unusual degree of uneasiness seems to be seeping into the public image of labor-management relations.

Uneasiness is unusual because it comes at a time when the strike, as a weapon of labor, is at its lowest ebb of influence since World War II. For the first five months of 1962, time lost due to strikes was .14 per cent of the nation's total working time, or less than 2-10ths of 1 per cent. For the last five years, the average annual lost time due to strikes was .23 per cent of available working hours, according to Labor Department statistics. This rate was down considerably from earlier postwar years, when time lost due to strikes broke all previous records.

1961, with a lost time record of .14 per cent, rated as one of the best years in labor-management relations. The record of 1962 thus far is a carbon copy of last year. But continued expressions of uneasiness by government officials and a tendency by some of them to over-react to normal labor-management maneuvers could create an atmosphere of distrust between the two parties most directly concerned.

Preparing for an undesirable eventuality is commendable foresight. Anticipating it with such vigor and threatening force that it is created, not of its own volition, but by the very inertia of the forces swirling about to prevent it, is inexcusable.

British Cousins Coming

What are described as modestly favorable results are accruing from the nation's first official attempt to persuade our cousins overseas to pay us a visit.

In the first four months of 1962 there were 147,000 foreign visitors to the United States, an increase of 16 per cent. In London the United States embassy reports a 30 per cent increase in visas issued to Britons in the first six months of this year.

And, persuaded to venture across the wide Atlantic, how do they like it when they get here? Their reactions are mixed. Some feel the welcome at airports and other points of arrival is not — to put it delicately — as warm as they might wish. Americans know what they mean.

Filet Mignon, a Status Symbol

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Jumping to conclusions:

A filet mignon steak is a symbol of the good life to many, but actually it is one of the most overrated and tasteless of foods—an example of the victory of snobbery over real values.

If you had to choose between eating nothing but filet mignon and gravy, or nothing but rice and gravy, you'd probably last longer on the latter—and enjoy it more. Rice holds its flavor appeal longer than any other single food.

When he is with two women, the quickest way for a man to make an enemy is to light the cigarette of one—and forget to light the cigarette of the other. A wife will put up with a husband who beats her in private if he always lights her cigarette in public.

The thing fat men are most fastidious about is their feet. Their shoes usually have a better shine than those of skinny men.

A woman over 50 who tries to hide her years by wearing too much makeup looks no more foolish than a man over 50 who insists on playing tennis to prove he's still young.

Working himself to death for his wife doesn't annoy the average husband half as much as being asked to come to her aid when she gets a zipper stuck. Why don't they use buttons?

A man who invariably wears a four-in-hand necktie invariably thinks a man who invariably wears a bow tie hasn't quite grown up.

Two strangers riding up alone in an automatic elevator never comment on anything except the weather—unless one of them has been drinking.

The real reason that so many women have taken up bowling is—that's where the men are.

If you want to get a really good meal, go to a restaurant heavily patronized by little old wealthy widows. Good food becomes one of their main joys in life—and they have the time to seek out the restaurants that serve it.

It is hard to understand why a woman who cheerfully carves up a chicken in her own kitchen acts so squirmy about baiting her own hook when she goes fishing.

The honeymoon is over when the bride first asks, "Why do you have to spend so much for lunch?"

Half the people who scream for more cultural programs on television wouldn't bother to watch them if they were provided.

The man who smiles through every loss isn't necessarily a good sport. He is more likely to be merely a poor player who doesn't have enough sense to keep his mind on the game.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—Uncle Sam is about to have company in his heretofore exclusive club. Joining him in worrying because good times aren't getting better fast enough are some of those he has been envying are such paragons of booming economies as West Germany, France and Japan.

But one and all have the consolation that if the bloom is off their boom, at least they're a lot better off than the Soviet Union and China, where mounting troubles are becoming plain for all to see.

In the United States, worrying so far has concentrated in Washington and Wall Street. The rest of the country mostly has gone along doing business about as usual and planning to do more business in the future.

But in Washington the debate over what to do about an economy that isn't growing as fast as hoped is at a peak, both in and out of Congress.

And Wall Street had its say in May and June when stock prices broke sharply to bolster recession fears.

Stock market slides also were the first outward sign of trouble in West Germany and Japan. Stock prices in England and France have moved pretty much in sympathy with Wall Street also, as is natural in a world growing ever more tightly allied financially.

But signs of industrial slowdown are now reported in the Common Market nations that of late have been cited as shining examples of the way to get a boom started and keep it going. Their fiscal policies—ignoring orthodox treasury deficits, as these are understood in the United States, to keep economy planning humming—are being studied by American financial experts for tips on how Washington might change its fiscal ways.

While Washington is studying the European examples, West Germany reports a slowdown in the pace of several of its heretofore fast-growing industries. This has been dramatized by a drop of about 25 per cent in stock price averages in the last four months.

Japan's flashy stock market ran into trouble some time back.

Now France is beginning to fret about an economic development that has plagued the United States most of this year—a slowdown in capital goods investment.

Some see all this as proof that the old economic cycle is far from being as dead as many had hoped. Others see it as a challenge to try new ways, here and abroad, to get the non-Communist world moving faster again—especially as troubles in the Communist world mount.

LAFF-A-DAY

"Drip dry."

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

OCTOGENARIAN playwright and novelist P. G. Wodehouse has jotted down some of his memories in a little book called "Author! Author!" He recalls, for instance, the time he went to Southern California for the winter — and found it. And the time he asked Thurber how his new play was coming along. "It has only one fault," answered Thurber slowly. "It's kind of lousy."

Wodehouse became a writer because, he says, after starting out as a bank clerk, he quickly decided that his true future lay in cashing rather than filing checks.

Bernard Shaw was no favorite of P. G. Wodehouse. He quotes, with relish, a remark made by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero when Shaw resigned in a huff from the Dramatists Club. "Mr. Shaw's resignation," said Sir Arthur, "is as nothing compared with ours."

At a Westchester country club, a member told the owner of a big metropolitan newspaper, "Say, I owe you a vote of thanks. Your paper proved just the thing to stop my two kids from raising the devil this morning." Obviously pleased, the newspaper owner inquired, "What particular article did the trick?" "No article at all," explained the father. "I just rolled up your paper and whacked them with it."

Riddle Department:

1. Q. What's the difference between a school teacher and a railroad train?
A. The teacher says, "Take that gum out of your mouth; the train says, 'Choo! Choo!'"
2. Q. What has eight legs, wears feathers, and says, "Ba-a-a, ba-a-a, ba-a-a?"
A. An Irishman singing "The Whiffenpoof Song."

Diamonds Prove To Be Best In Adornment

By SUSAN BARDEN

Marvin Koslow, who has been creating diamond jewelry for an international clientele since his youth, believes that diamonds are truly a girl's best friend when she selects her gems as subtle complements to her feminine charms.

Going in for the ultra in elegant opulence, this gentleman feels that real jewelry should be as individualized as clothes and coiffures.

In his workrooms precious gems are intricately designed and executed with a maximum of diamonds and a minimum of metal. Great thought is given to facial contours, neck line and bone structure to give the jewels a chance to enhance the beauty of the wearer.

Wedding Gifts Are Pretty And Practical

By ELEANOR ROSS

Breathes there a soul that hasn't one or two brides on her gift list just now?

Almost every one has a young relative or friend planning an aisle walk this year.

What naturally arises on receipt of a wedding invitation is the question of what to give the couple that will be useful, attractive and a fitting token of your good wishes.

According to news in the retail trade, we seem to be getting away from such old faithfuls as silver bowls and bud vases — so much so that stores have started to include housewares in their bridal gift registries, as well as in their advertising.

Formerly, these gift registries were limited entirely to fine china, silver, crystal and luxurious table linens. Of course, there are plenty such gifts still being bestowed, but by and large people are getting more practical all the time and housewares — particularly fine kitchen appliances and bathroom accessories — rate a place in the scheme of wedding gifts.

Being practical in your gift choice doesn't necessarily mean precluding glamour. There's nothing plebeian about a handsome set of stainless steel tableware—which will stay shining bright with ordinary washing, meaning that the bride will never have to polish it. A canister set is another wonderful and practical gift.

If the couple leans toward Early American or traditional styles, copper is a perfect choice—while modernists would probably prefer something in chrome or stainless. Again, the nonpolishing kind will spare the bride hours of work. Many beautiful canister sets require only surface wiping with a sudsy sponge.

Or how about something for the bathroom, such as a monogrammed shower curtain in snowy white, which will go with any color scheme? Brides love anything featuring their brand-new monogram, especially when the lettering is big and impressive.

Another slightly off-beat gift choice is one of the extremely popular tension pole organizers for the bathroom. These have an assortment of shelves, bars and rings to hold a variety of bath accessories. This may be a hard one to gift-wrap, but it can't fail to please.

The housewares department is a happy hunting ground for gifts, whether they are for 1962's brides or for silver anniversary couples. Just remember this important consideration: don't wrap up any problems in that pretty package! Make your choice easy to maintain so that it can be kept clean with a minimum of effort.

Cinerama's First Plotted Film Effort Proves To Be Successful

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Cinerama, which revolutionized movies a decade ago by breaking the confines of the standard screen, is finally in the story-telling business.

After putting out five highly-successful travelogues, Cinerama commissioned MGM to create two full-sized features. The first, "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm," is now being released. The second, "How the West Was Won," will follow.

Hollywood has been waiting to learn how a plotted movie can fit onto the huge cinerama screen, curved to 146-degrees angle of view.

The answer came at this week's premiere: Fine.

As many of us have suspected all along, there is no reason why a plot cannot be played on the immense cyclorama. It is not meant for intimate drama. But close scenes of two figures or even one can easily be projected between the more eye-filling segments.

Wisely, there are many of the latter in "Brothers Grimm." Three fairy tales are depicted with verve and imagination. The castles and villages of Bavaria and the Rhine country are explored with stunning results.

There are a breakneck carriage ride, a riverboat voyage and a trip on an antique train to stimulate the ohs and ahs of those who are easily convinced they are in motion, despite being implanted in their theater seats. This is a Cinerama must, dating back to Mike Todd's roller coaster ride in the first film. Somehow that one has never been topped.

As to the plot. It is a bare-boned affair about the struggle of the brothers, especially Wilhelm (Laurence Harvey), to get ancient fairy tales into printed form. The acting is elemental, as if performers and director alike were bewitched by the bug-eyed Cinerama camera.

The cast is competent though a bit bewildering in its accents—Harvey's Old Vic British, Karl Boehm's Austrian, Claire Bloom's English ("Where have you been, Wilhelm?"), Walter Slezak and Oscar Homolka's Viennese, Terry-Thomas' Piccadilly and Buddy Hackett's Brooklyn-Cockney.

While the dramatic portions are sometimes stilted, the fairy tales are not. "The Dancing Princess" is played charmingly by Russ Tamblyn and Yvette Mimieux; it is the highlight of the film. Producer George Pal revives his puppetoons with winsome results in "The Cobbler and the Elves." "The Singing Bone" presents some good low comedy and a fairly believable dragon. "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm" is not for sophisticated. It is to be enjoyed with children. There being so many of those around, it is likely to be a success.

37th Division Heads Home From Camp

CAMP GRAYLING, Mich. (AP)—A tired but proud division of Ohioans headed home today, ending two weeks of summer training which saw them rack up one of the highest ratings in the nation.

In over 7,000 individual unit ratings, the state's 37th Infantry Division collected more than 70 per cent superior grades.

In the single, over-all summer camp rating given each unit, the National Guard division also shattered all records with all units receiving superior or excellent marks—56 superior units and 44 excellent.

Col. Robert E. Tucker, professor of military science at the University of Kentucky, headed the 28-man regular Army evaluation team which has studied and graded every phase of the 37th's training and operation in the past two weeks.

The final results were announced Thursday night. Last year the 37th had 60 per cent superior ratings in the day-by-day gradings which reportedly was tops in the nation.

The Ohioans started south for the military convoy trip to 67 home communities early today. The last units will leave this camp noon Saturday and all guardsmen will be home by Sunday.

It was announced Thursday that the division will again train here next summer — tentative dates are Aug. 4-18. It will be the fourth consecutive summer camp at Grayling for the 37th.

The other boys made so much fun of him it broke my heart, so I made him quit the team and returned the suit. Did I do wrong?

UPSET MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Yes. If there are traces of your son's handicaps perhaps he must learn to live with them. Protecting him from unpleasant situations is not helping him to adjust. You meant well, but you should have let him slug it out.

DEAR ABBY: Never did I think that a syndicated columnist would put me in second place with my boy friend. He had the nerve to tell me not to fog up his glasses until he finished reading DEAR ABBY.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please warn kind-hearted truck drivers and other drivers NOT to pick up elderly people unless they KNOW

Once, on his way to the grocery store (which is half a mile down the road), he hitched a ride with a truck driver who drove him 200 miles. It took us five days to locate him. Another time he hitched a ride with a man who took him to Chicago. We had the police looking for him for two weeks. Old folks are sometimes forgetful. It is better to let them walk.

Diamonds Prove To Be Best In Adornment

By SUSAN BARDEN
Marvin Koslow, who has been creating diamond jewelry for an international clientele since his youth, believes that diamonds are truly a girl's best friend when she selects her gems as subtle complements to her feminine charms.
Going in for the ultra in elegant opulence, this gentleman feels that real jewelry should be as individualized as clothes and coiffures.
In his workrooms precious gems are intricately designed and executed with a maximum of diamonds and a minimum of metal.
Great thought is given to facial contours, neck line and bone structure to give the jewels a chance to enhance the beauty of the wearer.

Ezekiel Urges Repentance

THE CALL OF THE PROPHET EZEKIEL AND SOME OF THE GREAT TRUTHS HE WAS COMMANDED TO ANNOUNCE TO JUDAH

Scripture—Ezekiel 1:1-9; 2:1-7; 3:1-5, 10-11; 11:16-19; 18.

By N. SPEER JONES

WHILE JEREMIAH was preaching in vain to the people in Jerusalem, urging their submission and repentance, another prophet was doing the same thing among the leading Jews who were taken to Babylon in the captivity of 597 B.C. (along with King Jehoiachin). This prophet was a priest named Ezekiel. At the time of the captivity he was probably about 25. He settled with other exiles in Babylon by the Chobar, a canal southeast of the great city of Babylon. He was there for about five years before God's call came to him—"the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God." This was still about six years before the frightful destruction of Jerusalem in Nebuchadnezzar's siege.

The assignment given Ezekiel was to announce to the Jews in Jerusalem, their particular identities to each other, however. Apparently the Jerusalem Jews taunted their exiled brothers for the fact that they were now living far from the center of Judaism—i.e., God's sanctuary. This shows up keenly the superficiality of their religion; they felt that their physical proximity to God's chosen spot automatically included them in God's favor; there was no inward penetration of God in these people, no proximity of their souls.

A reference to this attitude is found in Ezekiel 11:16, where in God says he will be "a sanctuary for a little while in the countries where they are come."

The 18th chapter of Ezekiel is considered by many to be the greatest Old Testament chapter.

GOLDEN TEXT

"Repent and turn from all your transgressions, lest iniquity be your ruin."—Ezekiel 18:30.

by God was far more difficult than that of a missionary in a foreign land. He was not sent among strangers speaking a foreign tongue, but among his own people, who spoke the same language; nevertheless, his own people were farther from him than foreigners, for their hearts were hardened. Although they could understand him, they would not.

The foreign people among whom the Jewish exiles lived, incidentally, are one of those referred to in the Old Testament as "the nations"—a designation used to distinguish the heathen from God's chosen people (see Ezekiel 2:3).

Oddly enough, Ezekiel's messages do not concern specifically the Jews in exile, with whom he was living; their particular circumstances or problems are not often mentioned. Father, he speaks still to all the Jews, both those in exile and those still remaining in Jerusalem.

Christian Science Lecture Slated in Columbus Aug. 19

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The casual visitor to St. Peter's Basilica these days might wonder momentarily if he had strayed into an ornate sports arena.

Twin grandstands face each other across the center aisle and stretch more than half the 700-foot length of the vast basilica. They will provide seats for 2,800 participants in the Second Vatican Council scheduled to begin Oct. 11 under Pope John XXIII.

Roman Catholic bishops around the world already are studying copies of the 2,060 pages of topics, preparing for discussion and debate.

To seat the council participants, workmen have joined miles of steel tubing and wooden planks into the grandstands that climb 10 tiers up the vaulted main pillars of St. Peter's.

Onto this skeleton went foam rubber cushions covered with tapestries and carpeting in red and green—the council's colors. Small desks and kneeling benches were built into the grandstands.

The double structure extends almost to the huge main altar of St. Peter's—the confessional altar that rises in the apse with four twisting golden columns supporting a baldacchino roof.

Pope John will sit, his back to the confessional altar, on a throne atop a platform 25 feet high. Directly in front of and below the Pope will be nine assistants — Msgr. Pericle Felici, the council secretary-general, and his aids.

A separate section of seats, desks and kneelers for 86 cardinals has been built between the papal throne and one bank of grandstands. Before the other bank is a portable altar for the council's religious ceremonies.

The council, the first in 92 years is making full use of modern technology.

Each participant will have a desk microphone tied into an amplifying system. Telephones on an internal circuit will let participants confer swiftly and privately with one another while deliberations are going on.

Flanking the sides of the confessional altar behind the Pope will be technicians to record on tape every word of council proceedings. An electronic computer will tabulate in split-seconds, the votes of the vast assembly.

Stalwart Firemen Are Routed by Bees

BUDD LAKE, N.J. (AP)—Firemen dashed into a burning farmhouse Tuesday night—and dashed back out again.

A swarm of bees, angered by smoke and flames, routed the firemen.

"They were going down our necks, through our coats and into our trousers," said Fire Chief George D. Smith. About 20 firemen were stung.

The chief said the bees apparently had built a hive in the unoccupied building. The fire burned out the interior of the house.

for their homes. Most everyone heats with GAS and is familiar with its economies and performance. So, when people learn about economical, complete-home, GAS air conditioning, they want it!

Every room in your home can be cool, regardless of simmering summer temperatures. You can sleep comfortably . . . cook and bake in relaxed coolness . . . have fresh, cool air throughout the house for comfort and health. Comes winter and your GAS cooling system readily converts to heating . . . filtered, fresh-air GAS heating that keeps the whole house snug and clean for your comfort.

You can have a GAS add-on central air conditioning unit installed in your present forced air heating system, probably using the existing furnace ductwork for cooling. In either case, whole-house GAS air conditioning costs less than you might think.

If you are planning to buy or build a new home or to remodel your present home, find out about GAS air conditioning. The installation costs of a central GAS heating-cooling system can be financed through the Gas Company, and you can make the payments right along with your regular gas bill. Call your Gas Company for a free air conditioning survey.

WHILE JEREMIAH was preaching in vain to the people in Jerusalem, urging their submission and repentance, another prophet was doing the same thing among the leading Jews who were taken to Babylon in the captivity of 597 B.C. (along with King Jehoiachin).

This prophet was a priest named Ezekiel. At the time of the captivity he was probably about 25. He settled with other exiles in Babylon by the Chebar, a canal southeast of the great city of Babylon.

He was there for about five years before God's call came to him—"the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God." This was still about six years before the frightful destruction of Jerusalem in Nebuchadnezzar's siege.

The assignment given Ezekiel mainly in Jerusalem. These two groups soon showed their particular identities to each other, however. Apparently the Jerusalem Jews taunted their exiled brothers for the fact that they were now living far from the center of Judaism—i.e., God's sanctuary. This shows up keenly the superficiality of their religion; they felt that their physical proximity to God's chosen spot automatically included them in God's favor; there was no inward penetration of God in these people, no proximity of their souls.

A reference to this attitude is found in Ezekiel 11:16, where in God says He will be "a sanctuary for a little while in the countries where they are come." The 18th chapter of Ezekiel is considered by many to be the greatest Old Testament chapter by God was far more difficult than that of a missionary in a foreign land. He was not sent among strangers speaking a foreign tongue, but among his own people, who spoke the same language; nevertheless, his own people were farther from him than foreigners, for their hearts were hardened. Although they could understand him, they would not.

The foreign people among whom the Jewish exiles lived, incidentally, are one of those referred to in the Old Testament as "the nations"—a designation used to distinguish the heathen from God's chosen people (see Ezekiel 2:3).

Oddly enough, Ezekiel's messages do not concern specifically the Jews in exile, with whom he was living; their particular circumstances or problems are not often mentioned. Rather, he speaks still to all the Jews, both those in exile and those still re-on the subject of man's soul. Here God makes it clear that the old proverb of the sour grapes setting the children's teeth on edge (i.e., the sins of the fathers condemning the children) is not to be considered valid. Every man will be held accountable for his own deeds.

A righteous father will still be so judged by God, though his son may be an evildoer; moreover, a son may prove himself righteous though his father may have been a dreadful sinner.

This proverb had been very popular with these Jews, for through it they could exonerate their own guilt, blaming all their misfortunes on the sins of their fathers. Ezekiel makes it clear to them that they themselves are responsible for their condition, and only they can change it, by repenting and re-

'Uncle Tom' Town Plans Celebration

RIPLEY, Ohio (AP) — This Ohio River town, made famous by "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will celebrate its sesquicentennial next week.

A week of events will begin with community services at 8 a.m. Sunday followed by a muzzle-loading shoot at 10 a.m. Monday will feature an antique show and Miss Ripley beauty pageant at 8 p.m. Tuesday will be the first presentation of "Liberty Land," the big historical pageant which will be repeated on Thursday and Saturday nights. The show starts at 8 p.m.

During the rest of the week there will be contests, pet shows, street dances, fireworks and go-cart races. The Sesquicentennial Ball will be held Saturday starting at 9 a.m.

Visitors to the big birthday celebration in Ripley will find many unusual and fascinating things in the historic Ohio River town.

Ripley is where Eliza of Uncle Tom's Cabin fame crossed the ice pursued by bloodhounds. She sought refuge at Rankin House which was the home of the Rev. John Rankin, noted abolitionist. The house was a station on the underground railway, and it is now a state memorial maintained by the Ohio Historical Society.

Ripley is in Brown County on the Ohio River. The town is 54 miles east of Cincinnati, 60 miles west of Portsmouth and about 100 miles from Columbus, Dayton Springfield, Middletown and Hamilton. State Routes 52, 62 and 68 pass through Ripley.

Kennedy at Mid-Term

History against President In Election Next November

EDITOR'S NOTE — Three months from now the entire House of Representatives and more than one-third in the Senate will be up for re-election. At that time the American people will have their opportunity to express judgment on the administration's record to date. The outlook is examined by AP reporter Reiman Morin in this fifth and concluding article on Kennedy at mid-term.

By REIMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy already is sniffing the heavy scent of the campaign trail, three months before the off-year elections.

It's not only because he enjoys campaigning.

This year he has some special interests. He wants to try to elect Democrats who will support him in Congress, to give him what he would consider a true working majority. And he wants to discuss, from the public platform, those issues on which he says "the American people are rather evenly divided."

In November, the entire House of Representatives and 39 senators (five filling unexpired terms) stand for re-election. Along with his judgment of the individual candidate, the American voter will have the opportunity to express his opinion of the President's program, especially the controversial portions of it.

These include health assistance for the aged, the farm bill, the proposal for a department of urban affairs, and the general education bill.

Conservative Democrats joined with the Republicans in blocking this legislation.

Kennedy recently was asked if he will take "reprisals" against such Democrats. He answered "no" and said most of them come from "one-party areas." He went on to say:

"I'm going to help elect Democrats who support this program. The areas I'll be campaigning in are . . . where there will be a very clear choice between Republicans who oppose these actions and Democrats who support them."

At present, there are 263 Democrats and 174 Republicans in the House of Representatives. The lineup in the Senate is 64 to 36.

That looks like a working majority for the President. But he frequently points out that the tally on some key measures has been very close and that a switch of only two or three votes would have changed defeat to victory.

The Republicans, meanwhile, gleefully remind him that when the Senate killed "Medicare," 21 Democrats, including a number of the committee chairmen, voted against the bill. They hoot at his description of this total as "a handful."

Kennedy says that if the Democrats lose five seats in the House in November, his working majority, "such as it is," will be gone. He would like to gain five seats, and to pick up 10 would be "wonderful."

His advisors, who demonstrated considerable political acumen during his own campaign of 1960, say it will be a victory if Democratic majorities hold at the present levels—in short, if they can break even.

Four principal imponderables bear on the outlook for November.

One is the economy. A recession, whatever the dimensions, would give the Republicans added ammunition. They already are calling the break in stock market prices the "Kennedy crash."

A second is the perennial question: Can a popular president invest the candidates in his party with some of his popularity? Polls indicate that Kennedy's stock is high now. But not even former President Eisenhower's immense popularity was enough to give him a Republican Congress.

The third imponderable pivots on the ability of Kennedy and other Democrats to explain complicated legislation, and to fire the voters to indignation over what Congress did to specific measures. The proposal for a department of urban affairs, for example. How many people understand what its functions would be and why the administration says such an agency is needed?

Health assistance for the aged is another case in point. The pros and cons of the various proposals on it are not easy to understand. The White House mail reportedly shows that a majority of the writers favor Kennedy's proposal, but not by any overwhelming margins. Anyway, since letter-writing campaigns can be organized, the mail is not necessarily a reliable barometer of public opinion.

And finally, there is the factor of political history.

In all the mid-term elections of this century, the party holding the White House made relative gains in Congress only once. In 1934, during Franklin D. Roosevelt's first term, the Democrats picked up 10 Senate seats and nine in the House. Otherwise, the "ins" always lost ground. Thus, Kennedy frequently says, "history is against us."

Red-Hot Reds Take Aim on Pesky Mets

CINCINNATI (AP) — A fourth straight victory over Houston wasn't enough to cool the fevered tempers of the Cincinnati Reds, a crew still harboring a private anger.

Nine hits backed up Jim O'Toole's pitching Thursday night for the Reds' 7-3 triumph, highlighted by Frank Robinson's 23rd homer.

But like the rest of his men, Manager Fred Hutchinson indicated the Reds itch to get started on the three-game series this weekend against the New York Mets.

The Mets may be dead last in the National League, but they humbled the Reds three straight games last weekend and hit hard at the pride of the defending champions.

Hutchinson, who tried some of his second string pitching against the Mets, said, "We're going with (Jim) Maloney, (Bob) Purkey and (Joey) Jay" this weekend.

The final victory over Houston was an anticlimax after three straight shutouts.

O'Toole held the Colts scoreless until the fifth when two runs, both unearned, went across. A third Colt tally scored in the ninth.

Red-Hot Reds Take Aim on Pesky Mets

CINCINNATI (AP) — A fourth straight victory over Houston wasn't enough to cool the fevered tempers of the Cincinnati Reds, a crew still harboring a private anger.

Nine hits backed up Jim O'Toole's pitching Thursday night for the Reds' 7-3 triumph, highlighted by Frank Robinson's 23rd homer.

But like the rest of his men, Manager Fred Hutchinson indicated the Reds itch to get started on the three-game series this weekend against the New York Mets.

The Mets may be dead last in the National League, but they humbled the Reds three straight games last weekend and hit hard at the pride of the defending champions.

Hutchinson, who tried some of his second string pitching against the Mets, said, "We're going with (Jim) Maloney, (Bob) Purkey and (Joey) Jay" this weekend.

The final victory over Houston was an anticlimax after three straight shutouts.

O'Toole held the Colts scoreless until the fifth when two runs, both unearned, went across. A third Colt tally scored in the ninth.

NEW UNIFORMS FOR COMMUNITY BAND — This group of Circleville musicians posed for the lensman in the early 1920's shortly after getting new uniforms. The group presented a concert on Labor Day in 1922 to collect money for the new uniforms. In 1923 the balance was paid by local merchants and the group presented concerts on the courthouse steps each Wednesday evening. Left to right, first row, are: Harvey Clendenen, Earl Buttermann, Glenn Compton, Asa Robinson, Simon Frank, Charles Schlegel, Ben Gordon, Alonzo Marion, Ralph Metzger, Boyd Brown; second row — Charles Pugh, Claud Robinson, Harry Baucher; third row — Ernest May, Pearl Grey, Fred Powell, Paul Betz; back row — Leslie Robinson, John Metzger, William Schlegel, Elmer Robinson, Allen Hammel and Tom McAllister.

3 Aquanauts Place in Junior Olympic Meet

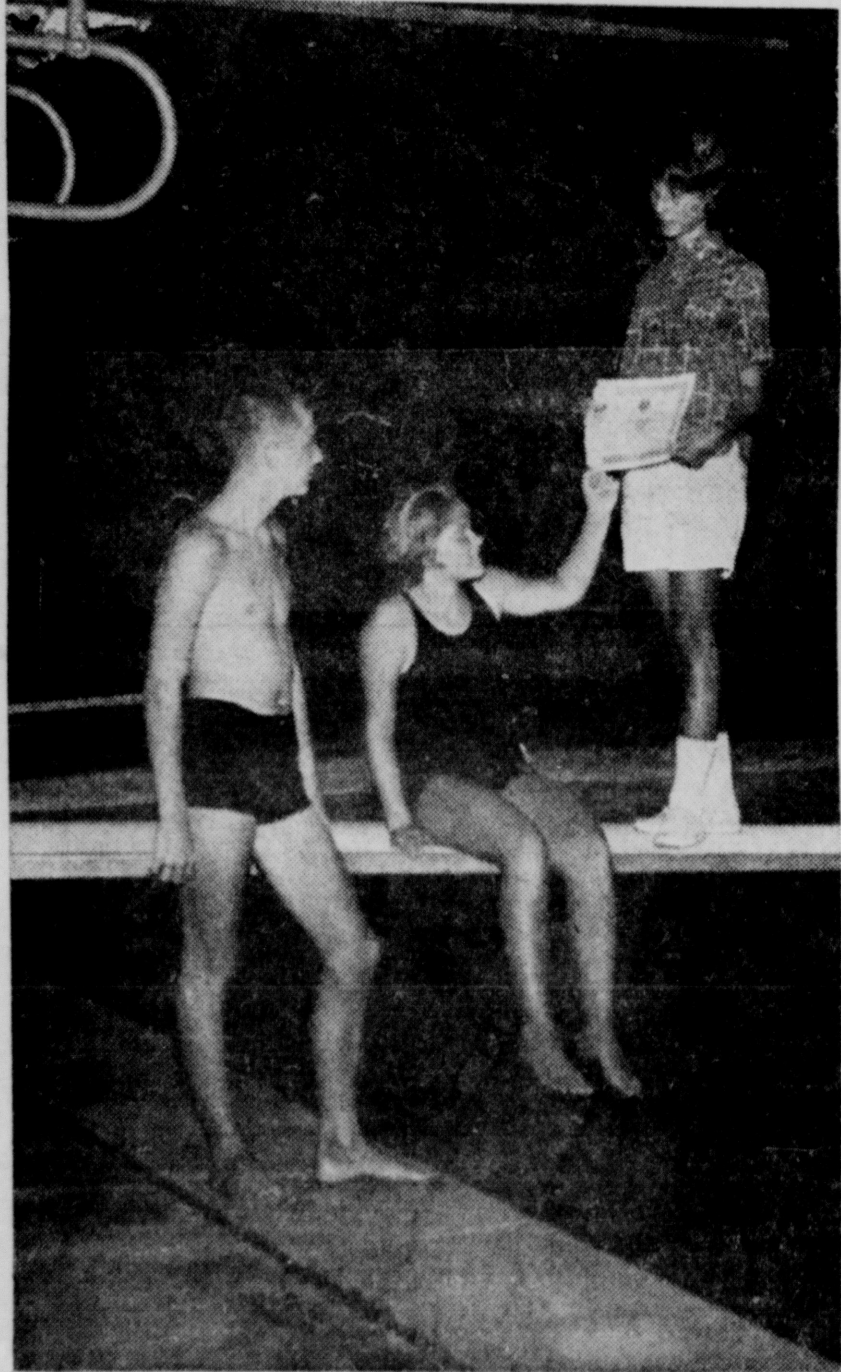

The Circleville Swim Club garnered two fifths and a third in Junior Olympic competition Wednesday and Thursday at the Maryland Park Pool in Columbus. The locals placed 19th in the 53-team meet with a total of eight team points.

Jane Kutler, Circleville's fine diver in the 14 and under age group, placed third in the girl's three-meter diving. Brenda Anderson finished fifth in the 12 and under 50 yard butterfly for girls with a time of 39.3 seconds. The winning time was 34.5.

Mike Merriman, swimming in the boys' 14 and under group, copied a fifth in the 100-yard backstroke with a time of 1:17.0.

Diving Coach Jack Weikert said John Pharr, diving in the 15 and 16 year old age group, gave a fine performance, although he didn't place.

for 60 days. President Kennedy, under the Railway Labor Act, can preserve the status quo by the appointment of an emergency fact finding board. Its recommendations presumably would form the basis for renewed negotiations between management and the railroad unions which would put off a showdown still further.

Three Firms Make Donations to OFIC

Three Circleville businesses were listed today on the Honor Roll of Contributors to the Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges. They are, with their number of annual gifts:

Coca-Cola Bottling Company, 3; Container Corporation of America, 9; and J. W. Eshelman and Sons, 10.

During the last school year, 27 students from Pickaway County were enrolled in OFIC colleges and 276 alumni from these colleges now reside in the county.

In addition to flue-cured and burley, the U. S. Department of Agriculture lists nine other types of tobacco grown in the United States. They are firecured, Southern Maryland, Kentucky and Tennessee dark air-cured, Virginia sun-cured, cigar filler, Puerto Rican filler, cigar binder, cigar wrapper and miscellaneous domestic.

The duties and responsibilities of a railroad fireman were presented at Thursday's hearing by Wolfe and Samuel C. Phillips of Cleveland, assistant president of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen.

Any man hired at random, said Wolfe, could learn the duties of a fireman well enough after a single train run to halt a train in case of an emergency.

Phillips said examinations are required of firemen after their first, second and third years on the job to test their capabilities. He said firemen have exacting job responsibilities.

The five operating unions involved in the long dispute represent engineers, trainmen, firemen, conductors and switchmen. Working conditions of all are affected by the proposed rules changes.

County Native Running Mate with Romney of Michigan

Clarence A. Reid, a former Pickaway County resident and a graduate of Circleville High School, was nominated in Tuesday's primary election in Michigan as George Romney's running mate on the Republican ticket.

Reid won the race for lieutenant governor, collecting about a 75,000 vote majority over his two opponents. He was a former lieutenant governor and had served as a state senator from the 18th District of Michigan for 10 years.

The Pickaway native now lives in Detroit. He is married and the father of three children.

Mrs. L. W. Anderson of Williamsport is a sister of the Michigan nominee for lieutenant governor.

MRS. Anderson recalled that her family lived in Saltcreek Twp. near Leisville. The property, located on the Saltcreek-Pickaway Twp. line, is presently owned by Frank and Irene Cahill.

Reid attended grade school in a small one room building just west of the present Saltcreek Twp.

School. He stayed in Circleville during the week while attending school here.

He later attended the University of Michigan where he received his LL.B. degree.

The lieutenant governor's office carries a salary of $8,500 and is for a duration of two years.

The Republican nominee for governor of Michigan, Romney, was the biggest vote-getter Tuesday. He was unopposed for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

The former president of American Motors tallied considerable more votes than the Democratic candidate, John B. Swainson, also unopposed. Romney piled up a big lead in the usually Republican out-state area while Swainson ran ahead in the normally Democratic stronghold of Detroit and Wayne County.

Romney has frequently been mentioned as a possible GOP presidential candidate.

NEW UNIFORMS FOR COMMUNITY BAND — This group of Circleville musicians posed for the lensman in the early 1920's shortly after getting new uniforms. The group presented a concert on Labor Day in 1922 to collect money for the new uniforms. In 1923 the balance was paid by local merchants and the group presented concerts on the courthouse steps each Wednesday evening. Left to right, first row, are: Harvey Clendenen, Earl Butterman, Glenn Compton, Asa Robinson, Simon Frank, Charles Schlegel, Ben Gordon, Alonzo Marion, Ralph Metzger, Boyd Brown; second row — Charles Pugh, Claud Robinson, Harry Baucher; third row — Ernest May, Pearl Grey, Fred Powell, Paul Betz; back row — Leslie Robinson, John Metzger, William Schlegel, Elmer Robinson, Allen Hammel and Tom McAllister.

July Busy Month for City Police

July was a busy month for the Circleville Police Department. Officers investigated 28 auto accidents and 27 non-traffic arrests were made during the period.

Five of the accidents resulted in personal injury. Eight of the accidents came as the result of following another vehicle too closely.

One pedestrian accident occurred in the city during July, involving a 5-year-old boy who ran into the path of a moving auto.

Officers probed four breaking and entry incidents, one grand larceny case, 10 petty larcenies, and one auto theft.

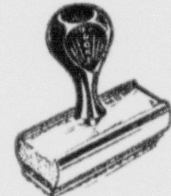

ELEVEN juveniles were taken into custody by the department on various charges.

Approximately 150 phone calls were received and investigated by local officers during the month.

Several sets of keys were turned in at the lost and found department during July. Officers noted that lost keys and other articles may be claimed at the station by making proper identification.

Multiple sclerosis, which results from degeneration of the sheath-like covering that surrounds nerve fibers in the brain and spinal cord, hardly ever occurs in the Orient, South America, Africa, the tropics, or subtropics. Yet an estimated 250,000 Americans are affected by the disease.
